

Meredith Matone is Scientific Director of PolicyLab at the Children's Hospital of Philadelphia (CHOP) Research Institute and an Assistant Professor of Pediatrics at the University of Pennsylvania. In her work, Dr. Matone partners with community organizations and public systems to evaluate programming for families of young children. She received her Doctor of Public Health, specializing in child and adolescent health and development, from Johns Hopkins Bloomberg School of Public Health. Dr. Matone is a former Stoneleigh Fellow and an alumna of the Doris Duke Fellowship for the Promotion of Child Well-being.