

Carlow University's EdD Program

Re-imagine the Future of Education Now

Carlow University's Doctorate in Education (EdD) is targeted toward thought leaders who want to challenge the status quo, embrace diversity of thinking and expression, and imagine transformative change in today's educational practice.

The three-year practice-based inquiry program, rooted in the Mercy tradition of social justice and respect for all, is uniquely designed with a focus on Scholar-Practitioner Stewardship that blends inquiry with practice.

Doctorate in Education Four Specialized Strands:

- Educational Leadership
- Curriculum and Learning
- Literacy
- Early Childhood Policy and Leadership

Students in the program will be immersed in a fully integrated, highly collaborative doctoral study design, and will become part of a cooperative leadership community of ethical stewards.

Contact Information

If you are interested in this graduate program, we are available to help with the next steps, including scheduling an online meeting, arranging an on-campus visit, or attending an upcoming event.

✉ ambisignani@carlow.edu ☎ +1 (412) 578-6296

About Carlow University

Devoted to the Future of Discovery.

At Carlow we want to empower students and provide scaffolding so that people feel like they belong, like this is a place they can thrive and come into the whole of who they are, on their own terms.

We work to remove barriers to education - both for our students, and the students they teach. We espouse critical thinking, research, contemplation and action as essential to the learning process. Through discovery, we open ourselves to the totality of our human experience.

These are the values we've built our Education department on, because we know that now, more than ever, our nation's schools need skilled and compassionate educators, people with a deeper understanding of how to teach and serve the whole student.